On the Horizon

End of continuing resolution nears – The U.S. Congress is rapidly approaching a self-imposed November 21 deadline to fund the federal government into the remainder of FY 2020. With the House having wrapped up its funding bills, attention remains on the Senate, where this week they began consideration of Interior appropriations language. Once the Senate language is finalized and passed by the chamber, the legislation will have to be reconciled with the existing House-passed version of the bill. All of this will almost certainly go beyond the November 21 deadline, and the most likely result will be another continuing resolution. Staff Contact: Caroline Murphy

Federal Updates

Subcommittee Hearing on the Recovering America's Wildlife Act – In mid-October the House Natural Resources Subcommittee on Water, Oceans, and Wildlife held a hearing to discuss the merits of the Recovering America's Wildlife Act and another conservation-oriented bill, the Wildlife Corridors Conservation Act \(H.R. 2795\). The hearing included testimony from several witnesses including Collin O'Mara, CEO of the National Wildlife Federation, who spoke of the need for proactive at-risk species funding, and Stephen Guertin, Deputy Director for Policy at the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, who spoke of the Trump Administration's support for the intent of the legislation. The next step in moving the bill forward is a full House Natural Resources Committee markup on the legislation.

See below for a map provided by the Alliance for America's Fish and Wildlife showing the current representative districts that are co-sponsoring the bill. You can check out an up-to-date list of cosponsors here. Staff Contact: Caroline Murphy

TWS Council Representative Johansen testifies at CWD hearing – In mid-October The Wildlife Society’s Northeast Section Representative Paul Johansen testified to the House Appropriations Committee’s Subcommittee on Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies on funding needs to combat the spread of Chronic Wasting Disease. Speaking on behalf of the Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies, Johansen spoke of the urgent need to fund state-based monitoring and research efforts, including but not limited to an increased investment in human dimensions work to better understand how to communicate with hunters and the public on this issue.

TWS supports removal of sage grouse appropriations rider – The Wildlife Society alongside several conservation and sportsmen’s organizations sent letters to House and Senate appropriators opposing the inclusion of an appropriations rider that would prohibit the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service from using any funds to determine the listing status of the greater sage-grouse under the Endangered Species Act. This rider has been included in final legislation funding the Department of the Interior since FY 2014. The House-passed version of the FY 2020 DOI funding bill does not include this rider, and it is still unclear if the rider will be retained in the final Senate bill. As stated above, the two chambers will then have to resolve differences between the two pieces of legislation once both bills are completed. Staff Contact: Caroline Murphy
