

THE WILDLIFE PROFESSIONAL

Hitting the Lights

Illuminating the effects of artificial light at night

The 'N of 1 problem' in management agencies

A complex disease, simplified

Combating climate change with 'poo-namis'

FEATURES

SPECIAL FOCUS + WILDLIFE EXTENSION

- 26 The Other University Educators
Extension educators take wildlife education beyond the university's walls
By Adam Janke, Dwayne Elmore, Jamie Nack and Scott Craven
- 31 What the Heck is WHEP?
An insider's look at the 4-H Wildlife Habitat Education Program
By Jarred Brooke
- 35 Reaching Beyond Outreach
A partnership with a university and Extension helps train agency staff to engage with the public
By Alexa Warwick, Barbara Avers, Emily Pomeranz, and Diane Doberneck
- 40 Continuing the Tradition
Extension's history of partnerships helped build support for sage-grouse conservation in Utah
By Nicki Frey, David Dahlgren, Lorien Belton and Terry Messmer
- 45 Extending its Relevancy
As rural lifestyles change, natural resource conservation offers a pathway for Extension to remain vital
By Ben C. West and Michael A. Butler
- 48 TWS Annual Conference Ready to Go Live
This year's conference offers even more live opportunities
By Nick Wesdock
- 50 The N of 1 Problem
Can wildlife management agencies do more to increase and maintain social scientist capacity?
By Nia A. Morales, Ashley R. Gramza, Wylie A. Carr and Kenneth E. Wallen
- 54 A Complex Disease, Simplified
Innovative tools help present chronic wasting disease education to diverse audiences
By Marc D. Schwabenlander, Anna E. Pendleton, Tiffany M. Wolf, Peter A. Larsen and Roxanne J. Larsen
- 58 Improving our Carbon Flukeprint
Conserving whales — and their 'poo-namis' — can help combat climate change
By Felicity Johnson

Credit: Mark Diltner

Credit: Purdue University College of Agriculture

Departments

- 4 Editor's Note
- 5 Leadership Letter
- 6 Science in Short
- 10 State of Wildlife
- 14 Today's Wildlife Professional
- 61 Policy Perspectives
- 62 Field Notes
- 63 In Memory
- 64 Gotcha!

Credit: Felicity Johnson

>> Log On for More

This publication is available online to TWS members on wildlife.org.
References printed in blue indicate links in the online version of the magazine.