Take Action!

Recovering America's Wildlife Act action needed to prepare Senate vote - The Wildlife Society and partners are gearing up for hopeful Senate action on the Recovering America's Wildlife Act after the chamber reconvenes in September. Now is the time to encourage all members of the Senate, including existing cosponsors, to reach out to Senate leadership and request a vote by the entire chamber. This is particularly essential for the priority targets listed below, but any outreach to your Senate delegation will be beneficial at this time.

During this vital time, TWS units can:

- Send a letter to their Senators asking them to support Senate action on the bill. This letter can be used as the first point of Congressional engagement by your unit, or can be used as a follow-up to any cosponsor request or thank you letters that have been previously sent by your unit.
- Share this newsletter with your unit's membership and request they reach out directly to their Senators using TWS' newly updated phone call script. All TWS members and supporters, including those that have previously called their U.S. Representative, can use this new call-in script. Members and supporters can let TWS staff know how their calls went using this google form.

Federal Updates

Inflation Reduction Act becomes law – A surprise climate and healthcare deal between Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer and Senate Energy and Natural Resources Chair Joe Manchin shocked Washington when it was announced last month. The deal eventually led to the mid-August passage of the largest federal legislation to date to combat climate change, known as the Inflation Reduction Act. The bill (H.R. 5378) includes over $21 billion for climate-smart agriculture practices and conservation technical assistance on private lands, funding for drafting and implementation of Endangered Species Act recovery plans, and funding for maintenance needs on National Wildlife Refuge System and State Wildlife Management Area lands. Staff contact: Caroline Murphy

Congress headed towards short-term funding extension – The U.S. Congress will in all likelihood need to pass a short-term extension of federal government funding when they return from August recess after Labor Day. Funding discussions for FY 2023 are expected to extend past the end of FY 2022 at the end of September, meaning at least a short-term continuation of the current year's funding levels will be needed to avoid a government shutdown. TWS staff will have additional details on the funding outlook in next month's newsletter and at wildlife.org. Staff contact: Caroline Murphy
