Message from the CMPS Board

Summer 2022, Vol. 66, No. 2

Diversity. As natural resource specialists, we study and manage ecosystems, niches, and functions. The science is clear, diversity on micro and macro scales are essential for healthy biological and physical processes, facilitating resiliency.

Yet when it comes to our own species, human diversity on planet earth remains painfully undervalued. In 1963, John F. Kennedy stated, "If we cannot now end our differences, at least we can help make the world safe for diversity." Nearly 60 years later, it is still not safe for human diversity even among our own natural resource colleagues who are trained to understand and uphold ecosystem diversity. Granted, many of us are indeed aware of and celebrate human diversity. Some of us work to shed old habits and unintentional language that hurt our fellow beings.

However, as a species, we have a ways to go. Last spring, a harmful situation occurred at a Colorado-sponsored natural resource conference (for clarification purposes only, this was not a TWS sponsored event) where one individual gravely disparaged another in front of hundreds of conference attendees. The statement made was completely contrary to the ethics of basic kindness and the tenets of human decency and diversity, to name only three of the many violated values. If you do not know of this occurrence in Colorado, please read: TWS reflects on racial insensitivity at recent conference - The Wildlife Society.

Within our CMPS Section, the following statements were issued:

Colorado Chapter of The Wildlife Society Microsoft Word - CCTWS Antiracism statement 5 May 2022 Nate.docx \(wildlife.org\).

Wyoming Chapter of The Wildlife Society <https://mailchi.mp/9bc73506e0b9/wy-tws-statement-on-cpw-incident?e=6eff0d33b7>

CMPS fully supports the statements of our TWS headquarters and from two of our state chapters. CMPS abides by TWS's Code of Ethics, and we have absolutely zero tolerance for harmful and hateful speech regardless of the orator and the person's position and power within an organization. This incidence reminds us of the important role each of us plays in influencing the space around us – in our communities and in our work environments. We must exercise mindful respect towards each other and learn from this event. Our field has championed many innovative changes that have improved the natural world, which suggests to us that we can also be leaders in creating a safe and healthy emotional space for each other.

Mindfulness. Many times, some of us don't know what we don't know when it comes to human diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI). Fluidity in allowing humans to simply be who they are or who they want to become can be challenging for our language as we often lack words, like a variety of pronouns, to capture today's human experiences. Who knows what we have yet to discover! But for today, some long-held habits often do not aid in an expansion of the mind and growth of healthy, resilient community. Because of our introspection and awareness that we still need to learn, the CMPS Board works every day on being more mindful of our words, actions, and behaviors. We work on talking less and listening more. No doubt, we likely stated something here that is not as correct, or open, or accurate as we could be. With kindness, please let us know!

There are seminars available to help us recognize our own patterns of behavior and speech that are insensitive and harmful to others. We encourage each of our 7 state chapters within CMPS to host a DEI seminar, if they have not already. If funding is an issue, let us know and we can aid in finding funding sources. Please contact TWS's Jamila Blake (LEADERSHIP & VALUES - The Wildlife Society), Professional Development and Inclusion Manager, for training and awareness resources. Lastly, if you have hosted or attended a seminar regarding DEI, please share the highlights with me, and I will relay to our CMPS state chapters and members.

By our very nature, natural resource specialists are curious. We are also problem solvers. Let's acknowledge that we each play a role in influencing the community around us and extend our innate curiosity to learning how we can be aware of and better to each other.

Submitted respectfully by,

Shelly Deisch, CMPS President and your CMPS Board Members

Biologists within CMPS win TWS Wildlife Restoration Award

A collaborative project between the South Dakota Game, Fish and Parks (GFP) and the US Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) regarding prairie grouse population and distribution estimates have garnered the two agencies The Wildlife Society's "Wildlife Restoration Award".

The research project was spearheaded by Travis Runia (GFP), Alex Solem (GFP), Neal D. Niemuth (USFWS), and Kevin W. Barnes (USFWS).

GFP Wildlife Program Administrator, Chad Switzer, nominated the project for the award.

"The conversion of native grasslands to cropland, energy development, habitat fragmentation, and certain woody habitat plantings and encroachment in both Dakotas can present challenges to prairie grouse. This study provided a more efficient and robust method of predicting prairie grouse distribution for targeting habitat conservation," Switzer said.

Runia further explained the project.

"Traditionally, we survey grouse in both Dakota's by surveying leks. Although the survey results may give insight into local populations, they have limited utility in estimating statewide abundances or trends because survey blocks are often non-random, biased toward high quality habitat, and lack adequate spatial coverage. To improve upon current methods, we surveyed male prairie grouse on 865 randomly selected Public Land Survey Sections from 2010–2016, then developed habitat-based spatially explicit occurrence and density models, which we then applied to the universe of environmental predictors to create spatial maps."

The project was a big undertaking, not only for the project coordinators, but everyone involved.

"Congratulations to everyone involved in this project, the project investigators, the numerous field staff that spent countless hours early in the morning collecting data, and the generous landowners who provided permission to make this project possible. To my knowledge, nothing of this scope has ever been done for prairie grouse," Switzer said.

"The results of this project will help protect, conserve, and restore grassland habitats and the species that depend upon them for years to come".

 - ⇒ Would be billed as soon as the conference is over
 - Shelly can cover the costs if our account isn't active with Novo
 - ⇒ About 200 attendees, they only currently have enough for about 1 drink ticket per attendee

 - ⇒ Andrea: might be so much info out there on GrSG that we could hold off on this.
 - ⇒ Dani: possibly issue a position statement after the RMPA, to issue a position after the ROD is issued. Value added outside of this is unclear right now. Dani & Daly will speak with Greg Schenbeck about the correct course of action.
 - ⇒ Stephanie: Should this just be removed right now? Andrea suggests looking at TWS position on GrSG, to make sure we don't contradict.

- Prairie pothole discussion. Adam Ahler's had been working on a draft statement, this morning he sent a letter outlining a general position & reasoning. CMPS has this draft now. Stephanie will send this out to the board for review, the format is different (a letter instead of a document, directed to DOI). No known major threats to the prairie pothole region at a national level, so it's unclear what the purpose of the letter would be. We could turn this more into a position statement to utilize in the future.

⇒ Deadline requested for a response with an action item, so it will be addressed in a timely manner.

- Colorado Partners Conference controversy. Shelly clarified that this did not happen at a TWS event.
- TWS contacted Shelly, discussions occurred regarding statements that CMPS could make.

 - ⇒ Suggestion made to link TWS statements in the newsletters, support the statements.
 - ⇒ Suggestion made to issue a statement that mentions zero tolerance for racism, hateful, and harmful speech.
 - Shelly offered to draft the language and be the signatory, it will be her statement, none of the board will be mentioned.
 - CMPS's statement will be run past Gordon Batcheller via Andrea.
 - ⇒ TWS has a code of conduct that addresses situations like these.
 - Can CMPS adopt a code of conduct and consequences? Seems like extra, our section is covered by TWS.

- Nominations cut off June 12th.
- Once all nominations are together, they will be packaged with a link to vote to Mariah, will be included in the newsletter by June 15th.
